2018 Leadership Development Week – East and West AT A GLANCE

The Executive Leadership Council's Institute for Leadership Development & Research helps strengthen the talent pipeline of black leaders, providing first class leadership development programs that enhance individual growth and catapult executives into key leadership roles. Our mission is to deliver leadership training by building a comprehensive curriculum of stair-step programs targeted for professionals at different levels in their career.

Our Leadership Development Week East and West, geared towards mid-level managers, will highlight one or more programs: Strengthening the Pipeline, Bright Futures, Strategic Pathways, Navigating the Corporate Landscape, and Leading Innovation. All participants come from a wide variety of industries, organizations, functional areas, and locations.

Description	The flagship program of Leadership Development Week. Participants gain an understanding of more advanced concepts in leadership with a special emphasis on enhancing self-awareness, learning to navigate the organization, and creating a career development plan.	This new program focuses on building an arsenal of tools, insights, skills and behaviors that leaders must have to unleash their own creative potential, and to cultivate a culture where innovation and collaboration can flourish. It exposes participants to advanced concepts and information that demonstrate how innovative leadership, regardless of industry, can propel business success and growth. Additionally, the program will provide opportunities to explore and engage new innovative behaviors and perspectives that can empower transformation within their organizations.	This program brings together a diverse network of high performing black women leaders who are focused on increasing their leadership capacity in their organizations as well as the issues unique to black women professionals.	This program not only focuses on developing participants' leadership strengths and weaknesses but provides a nuts-and-bolts approach to teaching the key ingredients to thriving and surviving within the business landscape in which they work. The premise of this program is that one's success is often determined by the actions and decisions of others, and that to be successful, you must be able to influence key decision makers.	This program helps participants gain an understanding of core concepts in leadership and management necessary to succeed and achieve short-term objectives and long term career goals.
